Scout Films

Today, every nature and animal film makes us think. How long will we have this biodiversity, this wild beauty of nature with us before we destroy it completely?

The filmmaker of this film did not want to watch any longer. He lived with the protagonists of his film for a year and a half, filming under dangerous circumstances their daily struggle against the coal industry and the local representatives of the state power.

Through him we get a glimpse into the lives of the activists who fight against the overpowering energy giants. Experience their motivation, their fears, the defeats and powerlessness and ...if things go well, and they remain persistent enough - the possible victory.

The award for BEST NEWCOMER goes to:

Rich Felgate for "Finite - The Climate of Change."
