Waterhole Films

In this film, the very big and the very small of the African savannah perform a spectacle that gives a deep insight into the mysterious connections of life.

Numerous supporting actors take the stage and tell dramatic stories of interdependence in the struggle for survival.

The masterfully directed camera provides a deep insight into the world of the microcosm at a waterhole in southern Kenya and shines with large and atmospheric images.

They convey a powerful message of the network of nature that must be preserved.
